

Ballston Spa Sesquicentennial of 1957

postal history

was preserved for posterity when Dagne Samuelson Sollid sent a Priority Mail container via Air Mail from her Florida home to author Ann Hauprich in upstate New York in 2017. Among the treasures in the USPS box were the commemorative postcards at right. Also inside was a Sesquicentennial scrapbook that had been meticulously prepared in 1957 by Dagne's now late parents, Helen and Albert Eisenhauer. The collection, which includes photos, news clips and a souvenir program, will be donated to Brookside Museum in Ballston Spa, NY at the end of 2018.

Ballston Spa Bicentennial of 2007

was signed, sealed and delivered to readers of Ballston Spa: The Way We Were, The Way We Are with a page that included these images by the limited edition book's co-author, archival photographer Michael L Noonan.

Postmaster Joseph Amash and his staff had been busier than ever in August 2007 when a commemorative postmark was used to cancel stamps on special Bicentennial envelopes.
